

Company plans move to Catawba Industrial Commons

HICKORY — Catawba Industrial Commons has reached 95 percent occupancy with the signing of a 142,000-square-foot, long-term lease with Stewart Superabsorbants, LLC.

Stewart Superabsorbants

will be consolidating from multiple facilities in the Taylorsville area and is the pre-eminent supplier of CABLOC brand superabsorbent polyacrylates to the wire and cable industry.

Stewart Superabsorbants

becomes the third company to choose Catawba Industrial Commons, the former Corning Cable Systems facility acquired in February by investors represented by A.B. Henley and Stuart Nunn of RealtyAnalytix

Advisors based in High Point.

“Our team’s vision was to reposition this well-maintained, second-generation manufacturing facility into a multi-tenant industrial campus and the model has been validated,” said Construction Services partner Stuart Nunn.

In early 2012, Catawba Industrial Commons will announce phase two renovation plans for the final 15,000 square feet of available space.
